Leaders Get Ready

Promise relay, ice breakers, coneheap lunches, buddy burners, set-upons, a Scouts own, open-ended troops, inventures and bridging.

If all this sounds like gobble -- degook to you, then you aren't working with a Girl Scout Troop. If you are, these words conjur up many pleasant memories.

This week Appomattox and Charlotte County volunteers have taken a break from summer day routine - canning, tobacco, the office -- to learn about working with Girls Scouts. Some of the subjects covered were: techniques of teaching, making up games and songs, long-range girl planning, troop management, finance, troop government, uniforms, insignias, local council structures, policies, and program resource.

This produces much noise and lots of laughter as each is discussed, tried and formulated.

Although these workshops are fun, Girl Scout volunteers know that helping girls grow with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism, and service is serious business.

Because the scouting program is important it should be available to more girls in the area. Troop leaders are needed at Appomattox Elementary School and Appomattox Middle School.

If you are an interested, concerned adult with some time on your hands, or if you have a child interested in joining the program, please contact either Janet Noble at Travellers Inn Motel, phone 352-7451, or Peggy Clark, phone 352-8704.
